Sauntering through the forest, the wind whispered its secrets to the trees. As she approached the village, her face dropped like an anchor. It was silent, ominous and even the wind had stopped its eerie chatter. Cautiously, walking along the cobblestone paths, she was surrounded by destruction. Like a magician's spell, the villagers that had once filled the place with laughter had vanished. Something or someone had done this...

Resting against a wall, she sat motionless in the dim light. The night that approached was an unsettling, menacing darkness, full of dancing shadows that enveloped her. A tingling sense warned her not to move as she eventually fell into a deep sleep.
